The AI preserves your cultural foods but calculates the exact clinical ratios needed for your health goals.

Clinical precision for every budget and health goal

Diabetes in Accra

Profile: 55-year-old woman. Wants fufu but told to “reduce carbs”.

AI Intervention: Smaller fufu portions, higher protein in soup. Adds garden eggs for blood sugar control. Replaces daily Malta with water/orange.

Outcome: Higher energy in two weeks.

Weight Loss in Kumasi

Profile: 32-year-old man. GHS 150 budget.

AI Intervention: Smaller banku, grilled tilapia, steamed kontomire, boiled yam. Kelewele for snack. No quinoa or protein shakes.

Outcome: Loses 3kg in the first month.

Pregnancy in Tamale

Profile: 26-year-old woman. GHS 100 budget.

AI Intervention: Folate from kontomire/beans. Iron from dried fish and liver. Calcium from milk in porridge.

Outcome: Complete maternal nutrition on a strict budget.

Tradition and modern health are allies, not enemies

You do not need to abandon your heritage to heal your body. You simply need to change how you eat your food—and AI does the complex mathematical planning for you.

The Market Apothecary: Your Local Superfoods

Garden Eggs:

Lowers blood sugar, reduces cholesterol, protects the liver.

Kontomire:

Rich in iron, calcium, and folate (ideal for anemia and pregnancy).

Fermented Foods:

Probiotics for immunity, digestion, and mental health.

Kelewele:

Ripe plantain provides potassium for blood pressure; ginger acts as anti-inflammatory.

Light Soup with Fish:

Cellular Health. Low in oil, high in protein and minerals.
